Task 4

Enhance the Architecture to Gain Improvement in Availability and Reliability

During the pandemic, university students have faced challenges that have led to feelings of depression. However, online teaching has also brought some positive aspects. It has provided flexibility and convenience, allowing students to adapt their learning schedules. Online platforms have facilitated collaboration and engagement, fostering connections and active participation. While these benefits exist, it is important to address the mental health concerns of students and provide support to ensure their well-being.
